OSAC's Country Councils and Outreach unit, created in March 2010, is tasked primarily with developing and sustaining OSAC's Country Council program. OSAC's Country Councils are currently found in over 145 cities around the world, and function as information-sharing platforms for local employees of the U.S. private sector operating abroad. This paper highlights the role of OSAC's Country Councils & Outreach unit during the Arab Spring, and will explore how the unit conducted industry-specific outreach to gain information during the events, the methods Country Councils used to continually provide information to their members, and OSAC's role in the U.S. Department of State-led Task Forces on Egypt and Libya.
