Thank you for taking the first step in preparing for an unexpected crisis or emergency by reading this resource, the Personal Readiness and Emergency Preparedness (PREP) Guide, and sharing it with your household. The PREP Guide is intended to convey baseline emergency preparedness information that may be augmented or supplanted by country-specific information or procedures. In our chosen line of work, we can never know when this information will be used; we can only be assured by our level of personal preparedness that if that time comes, we have the right tools to manage and survive whatever event transpires.
